Mr. Street gives the talk of the guides in their own plain language—woodland terms, racy expressions, and rude eloquence. More than half the book is a spirited dialogue between different members of the party and the guides. By this method we obtain a most vivid idea of this kind of life; we see the lily pads on the transparent water—mark the purple summit of the mountains—hear the crashing thunder—admire the gigantic pines, and feel the thill of a heavy trout tagging at the line. Sunsets and startight, wild flowers and waterfalls—the flavor of venison and the awe of solitude, strange birds, bounding deer, the cry of the loon, as we of solitude, strange birds, bounding deer, the cry of the loon familiar and impressive as we read; this book gives us the sensation of a novel episode in the routine of ivilization. It is written with spirit and graphic power, with geniality and pleturesque skill. It is just the book to delight English sportsamen, Christopher North would have welcomed it heartily. It is fragrant with the eder of the woods, and animated with the spirit of adventure and is a striking illustration of the most characteristic phase of recreative life estimable in this country. Bootton Transcript.

M. Doolady, No. 49 Walker-st., New-York, has published an exceedingly pleasant volume called Woods and Walfred B. Street. Life in the woods! Fishing, salling, rowing gunning, swimming—adventure and romance of every kind! Mr. Street has given us a volume of rare interest—a sparkling, fresh admirable book, which will find thousands of admirers. It is just the book for the hour, but its story will always be new becamed it a transcript from nature.

LAURA KRENE'S THEATER.—This favorite establishment was crowded last night, and a "little over." The "little over." consisted of some from three to four hundred persons, carious to see the internal arrangements of the theater, who, for want of room, will be compelled to call on another occasion. The droumstance which so resulted was the inauguration of the fall and Winter season, and the first appearance of Miss Laura Keene slage her return from Europe.

Nor were the reopening of the theater and Miss Keene's reappearance the only novelties. A new play, in five acts, adapted from the French by Mr. T. B. De Walden, with wonderful accessories of scenic and general artistic display, was announced. All that was promised in these latter respects was realized. Miss Keene has secured a very fine scenic artist. In the second act, especially, his work was great.

The designation which Mr. De Walden has given to his play is "Tre Monkey Boy." Miss Laura Keene appeared in that character, and did it such justice as she could. Mesars. Couldock, Daiy, Burnett, T. B. Johnson, Peters, and Mrs. Alleo, Miss Polly Marshall, and Mrs. It. Vining, also acted as effectively as their parts permitted.

LACKA KERN'S THEATRE-THE OPENING NIGHT FOR THE PRESENT SEASON—"THE MONKEY BOY."—Last in the this house was crammed in every part, and the popularity of Miss Keene was amply attested by the thronged avenues of the theater. Indeed we have rarely seen a larger house collected by any opening in New York, and never have we seen an antilence better disposed to be satisfied with the piece, the theater and the company. The piece was a sort of marriage between the successful French drama." La P. title Polesgo." and Meyerbeer's late opera of "Dinorah," which we besieve is among the fortharming novelties of the present season at the Academy of Music. It may be regretted that Mr. De Wolden, its action, and in that more time to spend upon its production, as it was full of clever writing, good effects, and carefully pronounced charester. The main plot of the piece depends upon the presuned death of Pierre Remand by the hands of Lucien Gerard, at Toulon, after he has concessed to the robberty of Robert Livingston, and the concealment of its proceeds. Lucien then carries off the money and lives a fast life at Paris, where he meets the daughter of the defunct Livingston, falls in love with her, and tries to seduce her. However, she is protected by Jacques, the son of Pierre, who, at the moment of saving her, sees his father, who has come to murder Lucien. Jacques has also discovered the real name of Rose, the flower girl. He tells it to Lucien, who shocked and disgusted at his own conduct, reforms, practices his profession—that of a pointer—makes momey, marries Rose, and the piece ends happily. It would be needless to say that the piece is much more compilerated than our resume of the bones of its piot would indicate; but the late hour at which it came to a conduction precludes as from entering more compiletely into it. We must, however, say something of the meane THE CONNECTICUT WIDE-AWAKE SONGSTER.

FROM THE HERALD.

LAURA KRENE'S THEATER.

The double straction of a new plece and the first night of the regular season attracted a crowded house to this thester last night. Miss Keene opens her fourth season under favorable amplies. The house has the best possible prestige, and the directness has just returned from a European four, during which she undoubtedly secured the latest novelties in London and Paris. Her stock company has been strengthened in the crinoline department by the accession of Miss Folly Marshall, Mrs. J. H. Allen, and Mrs. Hough—all well known and samined by metropolitan theater goers. The opening piece, emitted "The Monkey Boy," is one of those thrilling dramas so much affected by the Boulevard theaters. The pl. is long enough for a fashionable novel; indeed, it might be spun out into two or three romances. We have the staple escaped forcat, the usual artist who is saved from destruction by an ingenious bouquetiere, a monkey boy, the son of the old convict, and an assortment of comic people, to lighten the business of the play. The piece is well constructed, and is clever in its never-ceasing action, strong effects, and striking tableson. The final pictore is the best one ever seen on the New York boards. The acting was better than the parts. Mr. Couldock had one of his favorite role, a great secondard, who becomes virtuous when his health fails him, and be rendered it with his usual vigor and discrimination. His acting in the first scene was very line. Mr Daly played the artist, Locion, carefully and well. Among the failes, Mrs. Allen carried off the honors by her very graceful performance of the ingenue, in which roles she is justly distinguished. Miss Keene played Jacques, the Monkey Boy a porely conventional Mr. Burnett gave a faithful delineation of Rouget, the stereotyped is the first of a series of translations from the standard novels.

M. Honore de Balzac, which enterprise the publishers have undertaken, with the cooperation of two of the best French schola in this country.

"WOMEN
Of all ranks and orders have singled him out, long since marked man, among modern writers of fiction, who me foundly knows and most subtly appreciates their sex strength, and in its weakness."

Whose critical judgment is widely and worthily respected have declared that he is the deepest and truest observer of human asture, whom France has produced since the time of Molisire."

CHARLES DICKENS CONTINUES.

"Unquestionably Balzac ranks as one of the few great geniness who appear by ones and twos, in century after century of sothership, and who leave their mark inclineably on the literature of their age." has been little known, because he has been little translated."

has been little known, because he has been little translated."

"HIS PRENCH
is a strong, harsh, solidly vigorous language of his own; now again involved in an obscurity which only the closest attention can hope to penetrate."

The London Westminster Review, in a long review of "Cenar Birottean" exclaims. "That inimitable Balase! what a spectacle oes this tale present."

J. LOTHROP MOTLEY, "MOTLEY'S DUTCH REPUBLIC," in a notice from The North American Review, says: "Haize, in his curiously accurate dissection of the passions, in the patient and painful sttention with which, sethoscope in hand, fager on pulse, eye everywhere, you see him watching every symptom, alive to every sound and breath, often reminds us of Goethe. .
Like a painter, he will stop under a porte cochere, in a shower,
and sketch you a beggan's bead with the most striking accuracy, not knowing whether it is to serve at some future day for a Belisarius or a Judas Iscariot."

THE PUBLISHERS
will not weary the reader with other opinions of Balzac. EWhat they have already furnished are from the highest authorities in the whole range of authorship.

THE NOVELS OF BALZAC stand head and shoulders above many of the so-called best English novels, and they need but to be read to rank side by sile with those of Walter Scott and Charles Dickens. THE SECOND BALZAC NOVEL, JAMES HADLEY, Professor in Yale College. 12mo. 366 pages. $1 25. THE TRIBUNE for 1961.

PROSPECTUS. The XXth Velume of THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE commenced on the lat of September. Up to the Presidential Elec-tion, now but a few weeks distant, which is to result, we trustin a Republican triumph through the choice of LINCOLN and HAMLIN, we shall give our utmost energies, and all possible space, to secure that result. Other topics must wait, or be reduced to the narrowest dimensions, until the eventful 6th of November. After that time, but more especially after the lat of next January, we shall be able to forego political discussion almost entirely, for mouths if not fer years, and devote nearly all ear columns to subjects of less intense, but more abiding interest Among these, we mean to pay especial attention to I. EDUCATION.-The whole subject of Education, both Popular and General, will be discussed in our columns through-out the year 1861, and we hope to entite in that discussion some of the profoundest thinkers and the ablest instructors in ou of the profoundest thirkers and the ablest instructors in our country. It is at once our hope and our resolve that the cause of Education shall receive an impetus from the exertions of THE TRIBUNE in its behalf during the year 1961.

II. AGRICULTURE.—We have been compelled to restrict our elucidations of this great interest throughout 1860, and shall endeavor to atone therefor in 1861. Whatever discovery, deduction, demonstration, is calculated to render the reward of labor devoted to cultivation more ample or more certain, shall receive prompt and full attention.

III. MANUFACTURES, &c.-We half every invention or III. MANCEACTURES, acc.—we am every invention of enterprise whereby American Capital and Labor are attracted to and advantageously employed in any department of Manancturing or Mechanical Industry as a real contribution to the Pub is Weal, insuring ampler, steadier, more convenient, more remnu-erating markets to the Farmer, with fuller employment and bet-ter wages to the Laboter. The Progress of Mining, free making, Steel-making, Cloth-weaving, &c., &c., in our country and the world shall be watched and reported by me with an earnest and active sympathy.

IV. FOREIGN AFFAIRS.—We employ the best correspondents in London, Paris, Turin, Berlin, and other European capi-tals, to transmit us early and accurate advices of the great changes there silently but certainly preparing. In spite of the pressure of Domestic Politics, our News from the Old World is now varied and ample; but we shall have to render it more perfect during and ample; but we man have to reduce to more period during the eventful year just before us. V.—HOME NEWS.—We employ regular paid correspond-ents in California, at the Isthmus of Darien, in the Recky Moun-tain Gold Region, and wherever else they seem requisite. From tain Geld Region, and wherever one they seem requisite. From the more accessible pertions of our own country, we derive our information mainly from the multifarious correspondents of the Associated Press, from our exchanges, and the occasional letters of intelligent friends. We aim to print the cheapest general newspaper, with the fullest and most authentic summary of use ful intelligence, that is anywhere afforded. Hoping to "make each day a critic on the last," and print a better and better paper from year to year, as our means are steadily enlarged through the generous cooperation of our many well-wishers, we solicit and
